

The subject for consideration at the meeting was "The Relation Between the First-day Schools and Meeting Houses." Mr. Walter and Emily Longstreth, Hartford Meeting, were present and gave many helpful ideas for co-ordinating the work of the two. The subject was further discussed by the following representatives from various First-day Schools: Mrs. Robert Atkins, Winsted; Mr. Robert Ely, Makell; Mr. Wrightstown; Robert Ely, Makell; and Elsie Cooke, Newtown.

FREIGHT BY AIR

Four air lines—American, Eastern, TWA, and United—have formed a corporation to assay the practicability of establishing an air express and freight service. This heralds changes in normal modes of transport likely to be as far-reaching as they are inevitable.

For years aviation enthusiasts have preached the economic and time-saving benefits of air cargo. Their proposals have recently gained new impetus as a result of developments brought by the war. The new planes are greatly enlarged in size, power, and range. Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold and Col. Ira C. Eaker of the Air Corps, in their new book "Winged Warfare," speak of ships five times as big as the biggest "flying fortresses."

These planes are now on the drawing boards. They will weigh 200,000 pounds. They will carry 11,000 gallons of gasoline for their own fuel supply. (The standard railroad tank car carries 8,000 gallons.) Such a ship will carry 40 tons or more of cargo, at speeds five or six times faster than the fastest freight trains.

The war in Europe and Africa has demonstrated the effectiveness of the plane as a supply bearer under emergency conditions. But long before the Nazis began shutting troops and supplies through the air over Europe, the United States Army and Navy were fully cognizant of the advantages of air freight. Cargo planes, specially designed and built for the purpose, have been standard equipment in both services for at least a dozen years. Today their number has multiplied and both the Army and Navy are hauling their own freight through the air, in volume.

There seems no question that this practice will extend through to the usages of peacetime transport. It would have begun on a big scale ere now had not the plane bottleneck produced by the defense program rendered new planes hard to get for commercial purposes. Economic studies seem to show plainly that ships no bigger than those now in use could carry express and some kinds of freight cheaper than trucks or railroads. It is quite possible, experts hold, that in a few years cargo business will be the major business of the air lines.

SAM HOUSTON'S SON

Gen. Sam Houston's son, Andrew Jackson Houston, is a little late in coming to the United States. But he is just as welcome as he would have been if he had arrived at an earlier age.

Sam Houston's son is 87 years old, having been born 18 years after his father won the Battle of San Jacinto. Governor O'Daniel of Texas appointed the younger Houston to the Senate on the 105th anniversary of his father's famous victory. Incidentally, Sam Houston occupied the same Senate seat 95 years ago.

Andrew Jackson Houston is believed to be the oldest freshman ever to enter the "greatest deliberative body in the world." He is planning to stay there only a short time—until June 28, when a special election will be held in Texas to elect a Senator for the remainder of the late Morris Sheppard's unexpired term.

Even if automobile production is reduced 20 per cent, the pedestrian will still have to watch his step.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM SUBURBAN TOWNS

HULMEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. William Walton spent Sunday in Salem, N. J., as guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Fred Brown. Tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. A. E. A. Bronson will leave for Ocean City, N. J., for a sojourn at their cottage.

London, May 8.—Smashing at Nazi raiders with American-built Havocs and Beau fighters, RAF pilots scored a record-breaking "bag" last night and early today as they sent 23 German bombers spinning to doom.

The battle raged in the moonlight as the Germans once more hammered Liverpool and other far-flung British sectors, spreading death and damage despite the savage British air attacks. Nearly all the Nazi airmen shot from the darkened skies perished as their planes plunged to earth.

In addition to the 23 Nazi planes shot down, a number were reported considerably damaged and some of these were believed to have crashed. A widespread search was under way

Defense Gets First Call On All Products

Washington, May 8.—In a sweeping move toward all-out defense production, the Office of Production Management today granted to the War and Navy Departments first call on virtually every product of American industry which might be used by the nation's armed forces.

The "blanket order" was contained in an expanded "priorities critical list" of 45 new items, including steel and nearly all other metals, on which the Army or Navy could obtain delivery ahead of non-defense demands.

The new order was issued by E. R. Stettinius, Jr., OPM director, boosted to nearly 300 the items placed under inventory control, but most significant was the "about face" on the definition of parts and accessories affected by the various products.

"The items that appear on this list shall be deemed to include all fabricated, mechanical or electrical component parts and accessories necessary for the completion, maintenance or mechanical operation thereof," the order read.

May Grant $15,000,000 For Street Improvements

Harrisburg, May 8.—A grant of $15,000,000 to all cities, boroughs, towns and townships in the state for street and road improvements may be made by the Legislature within the next few weeks.

A bill appropriating the money already has been approved by the Senate and is slated to be given first reading in the House today. The measure is backed by the local government commission and tears bi-partisan sponsorship.

Treats From Leftovers

What do you do with the last of your sponge cake or the few crackers left in your cookie jar? Really, either may be used as the base of an excellent, healthful dessert that calls for no eggs, no baking or no boiling—a dessert that will delight the adult and at the same time furnish healthful milk in a pleasing form to children who refuse to drink their milk "plain."

Here are two recipes for those who care to prove these statements:

Peach Shortcake
1 package lemon rennet powder

1 pint milk, ordinary or homogenized

4 pieces sponge cake (leftover cake may be used)

A few thin slices fresh or canned peaches

Place the pieces of cake in the bottom of the dessert dishes. Put two or three slices of the canned or fresh peaches over the top of each piece of cake. Make rennet-custards according to directions on package. Pour over pieces of cake and peaches and do not move until firm—about 10 minutes. Then chill in refrigerator. Serves 4.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

Rex Harrison is currently starred at the Bristol Theatre in "Missing Ten Days," with Karen Verne.

Eddie Quillan, popular young screen player, portrays an important comedy role in Universal's "Where Did You Get That Girl?" current at the Bristol Theatre.

Quillan is seen as a "hot" trumpet player in a youthful swing band which experiences considerable difficulty before attaining success.

GRAND THEATRE

The same sensational situations, the same wealth of emotional drama which made Fannie Hurst's great novel, "Back Street," one of the outstanding novels of the day, have been captured and put on the screen in Universal's picturization of the story which now appears at the Grand Theatre, according to the multitudes who have read the book and also have seen the picture.

Starring Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullivan, two of the most glamorous figures of the modern screen, Uni-versal's picture, "Back Street," was directed by Robert Stevenson, brilliant young English novelist who recently went to Hollywood after serving for years as a director in the British isles and on the continent.

The story of the picture covers the period from 1898 to 1930, with Cincinnati, Ohio, New York, and Paris as backgrounds.

RITZ THEATRE

Carol Adams' name may be added to the impressive list of youngsters who got their start appearing in the Meglin Kiddie Revues. Although she is now completely grown up—old enough, in fact, to play the leading feminine role opposite Gene Autry in "Ridin' On A Rainbow," now showing at the Ritz Theatre—she made her first stage hit dancing at Loew's State Theatre at the age of seven.

Although she has absolutely nothing to do with "Gene With the Wind," Scarlett O'Hare plays a very important role in "L'il Abner," screen version of the famous cartoon feature which is at the Ritz Theatre.

By BETTY BARCLAY

When the smoke of the annual salute has wafted away, Mother Nature turns our thoughts toward the dinner table. Here are some recipes that will come in handy for those who entertain as well as for those who merely have a "family dinner":

Baked Limas

2 cups dried Limas
1/2 cup diced salt pork
1/2 cup minced onion
1/2 cup diced carrots
2 cups boiling water
2 tablespoons butter

Soak Limas overnight or from 6 to 8 hours in water to cover, then drain. Put salt pork in a heavy frying pan and cook 5 minutes; add onions and carrots and cook until brown. Add to the Limas and mix well and turn into a casserole, add water, then break butter into bits and place on top of Limas. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) until tender, about 3 hours.

California Rice

(Serves 6-8)
2 cups fluffy, hot, cooked rice
3 oranges, peeled and sectioned
Place rice in serving dish, cover with orange sections and Lemon Sauce.

Lemon Sauce

Mix and bring to a boil:
1 level tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup water
Boil 5 minutes. Remove from fire. Add:
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter
Keep hot until ready to serve, or serve cold if preferred.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

"Nice of Kanamura to leave me my gun," North commented when he slipped on his shoulder holster.

"Come along, old chap—I'm pinning for a breath of Hawaii's lusty famed pure air," remarked Kilgour as he strolled to the window to look out at the Koolau Range looming black and ragged, save where the moon had silvered certain volcanic peaks.

"My word, look at that moon! Isn't it—"

Kilgour's speech was cut short when a bullet sang through the open window and with a vicious teheunk! buried itself in the bedroom wall, all but dressing his scalp. It had come from a silenced rifle.

The Englishman, who had dropped to the floor, blinked up at North, who was standing alert and somber-eyed across the room. Kilgour laughed a particularly mirthless laugh. "I say, old lad," he said, "You surely are in demand."

"The Floating Lily" certainly belied that name when Captain Hugh North and Bruce Kilgour presently halted before it. It was a wide-fronted, two-story stucco structure. One tinted a deplorable shade of pale green, it resembled a lily neither in color, odor, nor purity... especially around 3 A. M.

For a few minutes the two men, inconspicuous in their dark clothes, sauntered down the street, surveying with tired disgust a succession of tawdry dance halls, tiny Chinese shops, tenements, and dives.

This quarter had only one thing in common with the rest of Honolulu—its patent excitement over the threatened war. All along the sidewalks knots of loafers—Chinese, Portuguese, Filipinos, and Europeans—gesticulated and yelled at one another. The Japanese, who usually crowded this quarter, were noticeably few.

The two intelligence men soon teetered up to the Floating Lily, hats crammed loosely on the backs of their heads, hair over eyes, and otherwise giving a convincing counterfeit of two tea-ed up tourists in search of amusement.

"Hi, Jack," North shouted to two sailors who came reeling out of the Floating Lily. "Anythin' doin' in there?"

"Doin'! Sure! Besh! N' place y' ever seen—"

"But I say, it's nearly three o'clock!" Kilgour had chosen the solemn and dignified drunken pose. "The bally shop isn't shutting up!"

Swaying a little, the two sailors made violent gestures of denial. "Shut up? Now?—don't shut up 'til last bozo passes out."

"Hear that 'wing, will ya? The ban's beginnin' to get hot." The smaller of the two waved an uncertain, tattooed hand towards the Floating Lily. There was no denying that the blaring jazz inside was reaching fever heat.

"C'm on back in, Jack, an' show us the ropes," North invited. "We're new in town—want to see the works—see? C'm on, we'll blow you guys to some oaks, or maybe—Say, Jack, North's arm went affectionately about the other's sun-reddened neck, "ever wash your towels with a Kanaka Moon cocktail?"

"Cocktail?" The bigger man made that vulgar but expressive noise known as the Bronx Cheer. "Nix, not for baby—gimme straight oke ever time. Whaddya say, Gus?"

"Okay, Freddy." Swaying slightly, Gus thrust his arm through Kilgour's. And so the quartet lurched in through a pair of swinging doors.

"Gimme a drink," grunted Kilgour, waving his arms a little aimlessly. "I jolly well want to get squiff-o."

Like harpies, a swarm of shrill-voiced women flung themselves upon the newcomers. For the most part they were utterly repulsive.

The air was gray with the reek of tobacco, Joss sticks, in holders along the wall, attempted feebly to dispel some of the fumes of cheap perfume and poor liquor.

"C'm on, podner," North's friend insisted, "they's a good table over in that booth. Hi, there, Luisa!"

That frizzed and painted dame laughed shrilly, "You come back again?"

Luisa swung near to greet Gus while skillfully making room for the gyrations of other dancers. "Hey, Soo Lee!" Freddy smirked the glass-marked table a whack that made its legs tremble. "Four oaks—wiki-wiki drink, savvy?"

A tired-looking Chinese waiter waddled off with the order. Then North showed a five-dollar bill across to Freddy.

"There y'are, Buddy, slip that to the band. Tell 'em to play 'Sain' Louie Blues.'"

"Okay, Buddy!" Joyously the two gobs became lost in the varicolored crowds of dancers.

"Well, this is sweet-scented!" Kilgour remarked. "I suppose the next step is to meet a couple of baggages so we can ask them if they knew the late lamented!"

"Careful!" North had suddenly let his head sag forward as though drowsy with liquor and was peering between his fingers.

"Ouch, I say!" Kilgour protested when North kicked his shin.

"Look!" hissed the intelligence captain.

Groggily, the English agent turned to observe the door at the far side of the dance hall and saw Baron von Rentner, immaculately dressed, followed by a servile yellow head-waiter.

"Well, strike me!" breathed Kilgour. "The blighter's slumming, too."

"Look!" North's disheveled black head indicated two men who appeared immediately afterwards through that same door. "Take a good look at those two men back of Von Rentner—especially the plug-

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Gailley)

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O God, Who by the example of Thy dear Son hast warned us that we should do Thy works while it is day, before the night cometh when no man can work; keep us from sloth and idleness, and from the misuse of those talents which Thou hast committed to our trust. Enable us to perform the several duties of our calling with such care and diligence, that our work may never be reproved in Thy sight; and for as much as the needful business of this life is apt to steal away our hearts from Thee, give us grace to remember that we have a Master in heaven, and to do everything in singleness of heart, as unto Thee, and not unto men, that of Thee we may receive the reward of the inheritance which Thou hast promised in Thy Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"What were you looking at so hard?" North asked Kilgour.

"That Charley boy in the red sash and the linen coat over yonder." He pointed to the head waiter who had appeared between Von Rentner and the two merchant officers.

The American agent studied the "Charley boy" as Kilgour continued. "Well, he is someone I know, or used to know. That, my good friend, is Lau Yee Foo. Had some er—dealings with the blighter back in Hongkong. And," he added grimly, "be ready for trouble—he won't be over-glad to see me."

"Why?"

"He knows I know plenty of people who would give a tidy bit to know where he is. Come on, maybe I can make him useful."

"All right—but duck trouble if you can."

Wavering on their feet, the two deserted their table and, after dodging among the dancers, sought that corner of the dance hall where Lau Yee Foo, very suave and alert, stood preening himself before the glass of a chewing-gum machine.

"Peeka ee, Lau Yee?" gently murmured Kilgour.

If a bayonet had jabbed the head waiter he could not have spun about more swiftly.

"Name not Lau Yee," the Chinese almost spat, his jet eyes glittering dangerously. But when he beheld the Englishman's bland expression, his parchment-like features relaxed. "Oh, Misser Inspector!" Fawning, the head waiter bowed low. "In what humble way can a poor worm like Lau Yee be of service?"

"Look out!" North snapped, but the Englishman needed no warning. His hand had shot out and imprisoned the scowling Chinaman's left, gripping the ivory handle of a knife outlined beneath the red silk sash.

"That will do, Lau Yee," Kilgour rapped in tones that were low but effective.

The head waiter hesitated, then glared up into Kilgour's steady blue eyes. "No tell? Plomiss?"

"I promise. But I must have a talk with you."

"You no make trouble for me, sure?" Lau Yee Foo wavered.

"Word of an Englishman," Kilgour said, with that firm arrogance which has won his nation a third of the world. "Now then, my lad, let's be getting out of this hall. This is my friend, Mr. Dent."

"Pleass to follow—"

Back through that selfsame door which had given up Baron von Rentner and his curious retinue, Lau Yee Foo conducted the two alert, suspicious white men.

"Coming up in the world, I see," Kilgour remarked as he followed the narrow white-clad back down a corridor only half lit by a small Japanese lantern.

"Yess, Honored Sir, me manager, part owner; me good China boy now and business man, too."

"You amaze me," was Kilgour's only comment, for Lau Yee Foo had suddenly halted before the entrance of a small room.

In the apartment there were four chairs and an elaborate teakwood table richly inlaid with mother-of-pearl. On this table several cigarette stubs still smoldered upon a broad brass tray. There was a bright overhead light.

In silence Lau Yee Foo stood waiting while both intelligence men studied the chamber before seating themselves.

Kilgour said crisply, "You may sit down, Lau Yee."

The three men sat in silence for many seconds... then the Chinese suddenly made a bow and suggested in abruptly flawless English: "Will the Honorable and Astute Inspector be good enough to tell this insignificant person what it is he desires?"

"Tell me," Kilgour began, "just what you know about a very pretty, blonde Russian girl who used to come here."

Lau Yee Foo's limpid black eyes wavered not at all. "The little friend of Mr. Kanamura?"

Though his features remained impassive, North's heart bounded. Feverishly, he hoped that Kilgour would be quick enough to deny this first identification in the hope of other useful attempts. His respect for the Englishman rose like a skyscraper's elevator when Bruce shook his sun-scorched head.

"Kanamura?" said he vaguely, "Kanamura?"

Lau Yee Foo was evidently very anxious to please. "Does the Most Honorable Inspector by any chance refer to a Russian girl who on occasion has come here with a very beautiful lady and Baron von Rentner?"

"Von Rentner? Yes, that's the girl. When she last here?"

Lau Yee Foo's features were blank as he replied: "This afternoon past she came in at five o'clock. This worthless person thought she was going to meet Mr. Kanamura—as that is the usual time of their meeting. But the Japanese—may dogs defile the grave of his ancestors—did not come; instead came one who is called Captain Karen."

North had a premonition which was promptly justified when Kilgour inquired, "He was the blond fellow with the mustache and the bruised head who just left here?"

The oil on Lau Yee Foo's blue-black hair glistened as he humbly inclined his head. "Yes, Honorable Sir."

"She seem glad to see him?"

"That would be hard to say, Honorable Sir, but my worthless impression is that she was not."

"What did they talk about?"

"That, Most Worthy Inspector, I do not know," Lau Yee declared earnestly, "since they talked only a little in some language I could not understand."

"You understood absolutely nothing?"

"Once I thought I heard the word 'Kaanapal,' though I cannot be sure."

"Kaanapal?" murmured the American intelligence officer, and raised interrogative eyebrows.

"Kaanapal, Sir, is a bay on the island of Maui."

"How long has the German been coming here?" North could have hugged Kilgour for his skillful ambiguity.

"The German, Honorable Sir?" Lau Yee Foo was very suave. "If you refer to Captain Karen, I think he is a Russian."

Kilgour shook his head. "No, I meant Baron von Rentner; how long has he been coming to the Floating Lily?"

Again the Chinese retired into some mental corner to reflect before replying, "I do not recall exactly, but I think it was early last April that the German came here with a very beautiful lady."

"Her name?"

"This least of all creatures does not know it, Honorable Inspector. The German said only that he had some private business to transact and that he wished the use of a room in this place where he would not be disturbed."

"What was the name of the Russian girl who went out with Captain Karen?"

"This unworthy person heard it only once," Lau Yee Foo apologized, and blinked owl-like in the strong overhead light, "but he thinks it was Teodora—Teodora Mazro. She never worked here—only came few times to be with the others and that Japanese—may dragons tear up all his accursed race!"

"Was there ever," North spoke for the first time, "a big American with her? A man with gray hair, pale brown eyes, and a big jaw like that?" He thrust his own jaw far out in reproduction of Abner Polk's prognathous one.

Lau Yee Foo promptly shook his narrow head. "No, Most Revered Sir, not that ray faulty perceptions have observed. I have just told Mr. Kilgour everything I know about the girl Teodora."

"Then she was with this Captain Karen late yesterday afternoon? And she left the Floating Lily in his company?"

"Your words are the substance and the reflection of the truth, Honored Sir."

"Thank you," North felt immeasurably encouraged; then he added casually, "One thing more—I ran across this ideograph the other day. Could you tell me just what this means?"

The Chinaman's fragile-looking fingers delicately revolved the paper. "Your Honor gave it to me upside down," he smiled; then his face tightened when his heavy-lidded eyes studied the symbol North had first beheld scratched on Teodora's neck.

"Honorable Sir," said the Chinaman, "that is a most unpleasant word."

"Unpleasant?"

"Yes. The character is for the Chinese words 'tan tzu'; though the drawing is somewhat imperfect," he added, and his jet eyes lingered on North's questioning gray ones. "It is unmistakable, however, that this character is intended to be 'tan tzu—a traitorous spy.'"

"Oh."

"You see, Honored Sir," the Chinese explained deferentially, "there are three words roughly similar; 'tan fang-ti,' which indicates a superior grade of spy—possibly a detective."

North felt, rather than saw, Kilgour's mocking smile, for all his attention was trained on Lau Yee Foo's ivory-tinted face.

"Then there is 'tan ma,' which is uncomplimentary, but not as uncomplimentary as 'tan tzu.'"

"Thank you, Lau Yee, I am much obliged."

The Chinese jerked another brief bow.

"You have helped us a great deal," Kilgour smiled and reached for his panama.

"And if you should choose to help us still more, you will be well paid," North added as he arose. "Here's a telephone number; if Captain Karen comes in again call it at once and ask for Mr. Dent. Or," he fixed on the Chinaman a lingering regard—"if you should happen to find him sooner."

That Lau Yee Foo was an essentially practical person was proved as he bent his glossy head over so deprecatingly and murmured, "And at what trifling sum does this Mountain of Generosity value said information?"

"At least a thousand dollars—American, not Mex.—perhaps much more."

It is proverbial that the Chinese are masters of their emotions; Lau Yee Foo was that as he said, "This Person of no Intelligence ventures that some information may be forthcoming before long."

"This way, gentlemen," murmured Lau Yee Foo and set off down the corridor.

North objected presently. "Hold on, this isn't the way—Where d'you think you're taking us?"

"I merely wish to show you something," was the Oriental's reply as he halted before a small jalousie of bamboo. "Pray look out, but do not show your face at the window."

Being on the second story of the Floating Lily, North swiftly perceived that he could see both up and down the street, and then made a second, more interesting discovery.

Neatly posted about the street, four cars were strategically parked before the Floating Lily's entrance, and in each lounged at least one man.

North recognized the one on guard in the nearest car as the merchant marine officer who had been Captain Karen's companion. When this brawny watcher bent to light a cigarette, something glittered significantly in his hand.

"You perhaps would consider the use of a private exit?" was Lau Yee Foo's bland suggestion.

Bensalem Prevails in Triangular Meet at Cornwells Heights

By Jack Gill

Yesterday was track tune-up time in local schoolboy ranks. Several Lower Bucks winged foot ensembles, pointing for Saturday's Conference meet at Morrisville, churned chiders in meets at Bensalem and Morrisville.

Bristol came flying through with an easy 74 to 51 triumph over Morrisville in a dual get-together, while Bensalem prevailed in a triangular test over Newtown and Buckingham. The point score in the three way fust was: Bensalem, 28; Newtown, 19, and Buckingham, 14.

Ejdys, fleet Bensalem sprint star, was perhaps the most outstanding man of the day. Running on a more difficult course than the boys in the dual meet at Morrisville, he swept the 100 and 220 yard dashes for the Owls in 10.6 and 25 seconds flat. While these times may not startle the North American sectors, they are commendable considering they emanated from a track known to be mushy and rather tiring. Yakimczyk, running for Morrisville, turned in a 10.8 and a 25 second effort in the same distances on a track known to be of faster surface. Thus Ejdyas may have installed himself as a favorite in the coming district meet. He upset Newtown's Darocha, who, until yesterday, was considered as tops in the section.

Bernard Genco, pounding Bristol distance ace, led the Cardinals in their 74 to 51 triumph over Morrisville. After winning the mile in 5 minutes, and the half mile with yards to spare, he was still strong and raring to run some more.

Bob Monti won the 440 yard dash in 56.9 and the broad jump in 18 feet, 7 inches. In all, the timer had a slow afternoon. The versatile Bristol star made it a triple header by taking the high jump at 5 foot, 5 inches, Capriotti won the pole vault at 9 foot and Paul Ruby tossed the shot put 44 feet, 11 inches to defeat Howell. Both the 880 yard relay and the mile event were won by the Cardinals. Galzerano, S. Sagolla, J. Sagolla and Rosser paved the way in the 880, while Galzerano, Rosser, DiLorenzo and Genco hit the tape first in the mile event. Howell won the discus for the homesteaders with a 198 feet, 2 inch heave.

Morrisville was led by Yakimczyk, who won the short dashes, and Tomlinson, who tossed the javelin a respectable distance of 143 feet, 7 inches.

Bensalem, aside from Ejdyas, looked up to Bob Scarborough, whose 5 foot, 5 inch high jump took a first place, and to Blocker, who won the shot put at 38 feet, 1 inch. Darocha came back to take the broad jump for Newtown, while Harris, of Buckingham, edged through to a surprise triumph in the half mile.

BENSALEM RESULTS
100 yards—Ejdys, Bensalem; Scarborough, Bensalem; Darocha, Newtown, 10.6.
220 yards—Harris, Buckingham; Heacock, Bensalem; Mort, Newtown, 2:14.
440 yards—Ejdys, Bensalem; Carter, Bensalem; Koenig, Buckingham, 25.
880 yards—Southworth, Newtown; Dunn, Bensalem; Algor, Newtown, 64.
High jump—Scarborough, Bensalem; Johnson, Newtown; Harris, Buckingham, 5' 5".
Broad jump—Darocha, Newtown; Blocker, Bensalem; Smith, Buckingham, 19' 7".
Mile relay—Buckingham, Newtown, (Bensalem disqualified), 4:45.
Shot put—Blocker, Bensalem; Rittenhouse, Bensalem; Smith, Buckingham, 38' 1".

Croydon Firemen Get Building Plans

kitchen. Closet room has been provided for various organizations which will use the firehouse as a meeting place.

The second floor of the building will be made into a large auditorium with a seating capacity of approximately 400 persons. A large stage with dressing rooms on either side have been provided as well as a lounge, cloak room and rest rooms.

The interior walls will have a rough sand plaster finish while rest rooms will be done in tile, and smaller rooms in regulation plaster. The apparatus room will have a rough block finish painted with aluminum paint.

The entire outside of the building will be red brick. Fire escapes have been provided in accordance with the state laws.

Mr. Burk warned the firemen that considerable difficulty may be experienced in obtaining steel girders due to the present national defense program and stated that it may hold up construction for as much as several months.

Firemen promised to double their efforts in the present brick drive so that actual construction can get under way. Chief William Smith stated that a large group of firemen will canvass Croydon on Saturday afternoon in an effort to swell the treasury and get more bricks pasted in homes and on automobile windshields.

BACHOFER HELPS WIN HIS OWN CONTEST

EDGELEY, May 8—"Pinky" Bachofer, Tullytown youth, helped to win his own game last evening on this diamond by tripping with the bags loaded in the second inning when Edgely scored five times to defeat the Voltz-Texaco nine, 8-3.

It was Edgely's first tilt in the Suburban League this season and the DeKoyers appeared very impressive. They committed very few errors in the field and the keystone combination of Johnny Dick and Al Doster broke up many of the gasoleers threatening uprisings.

Hal Shackleton started on the hill for the losers and ran into too much trouble in the second canto. He was relieved by "Kemp" Boccardo who turned in an excellent job of relief work, his slow teaser holding the Edgely batters to four hits in the same number of frames.

A very unique double-play took place in the first inning. Johnny Dick was on first, and Leinheiser, second for the Edgely team. Bill Leigh drove out a long fly to Ithig who muffed the ball but Krames who was backing Ithig caught the pill before it struck the ground. Both of the base-runners started to advance when Ithig missed the ball but Leinheiser after reaching third decided to go back to second, making two runners on that bag. He was tagged out for the double-play.

THREE DARING PILOTS PROMISE NEW RECORD

Three of the most daring auto racing pilots ever to come up to Langhorne Speedway from the small "bull ring" tracks have promised a new world's speed record for the world's fastest mile oval at the gala opening set by Lucky Teler for Sunday afternoon.

Ted Horn, Jole Chitwood and Bob Sall believe their grand new cars will attain the fastest speeds ever to thrill fans at Langhorne when they set the pace for the record breaking field. The trio is given odds to better Tony Williams' existing record of 103.4 miles per hour in view of past achievements.

Horn is rated as the most likely winner of this year's Indianapolis 500-mile classic. He finished second, third, fourth and fourth there, respectively, in 1937, 1938, 1939 and 1940. Chitwood, the Cherokee Indian driver, is the existing Eastern states champion. Sall held the world's record for 102.9 miles per hour until Willman increased the pace last year.

The star drivers will begin their bid for the record during qualifying trials which start at 12:30 noon Sunday. The first of the ten races, which add up to 100 miles, will start at 2:30 p. m.

Champions, present record holders, and youths seeking new achievements on the big league circuit make up the field for the May 11 classics. Mark Light, of Lebanon, and Tommy Hinnertshitz, of Reading, are two thrill producers of past Langhorne campaigns who are putting finishing touches on the "hottest" cars they've ever built. Others on the star-studded roster include, Bill Holland, White Plains, New York; Gus Zarka, Doylestown; Metz Simins, Philadelphia; Johnny Matera, Elizabeth, N. J.; Elmer Norris, Harrisburg; Charlie Breslin, Philadelphia; Walter Ader, Bernardsville, N. J.; Fred Bailes, Baltimore; Lee Wallard, Schenectady, N. Y.; Bob Chronister, York, Pa.; Ora Bean, Long Branch, Calif.; Rex Records, Paterson, N. J.; Danny Goss, Bridgeton, N. J., and many others.

The drivers will get their first workout during the middle of the week. Work on the new track surface, made dustless by 10,000 gallons of oil, has been completed for several days now.

RECIPES: Those Which Interest Women

Lemon With Vegetables

It is common to use lemons with fish, with hot and iced tea, in pies and puddings and for cooling summer beverages.

But many have not learned to use the healthful lemon with vegetables. You are missing a lot if you are one of these. Beets, spinach, cabbage and many other vegetables are real lemon allies.

Here are a few lemon-vegetable suggestions for your recipe file and for your early trial:

Harvard Beets

Mix well and boil 5 minutes:
 1/2 cup sugar, blended with
 1/2 tablespoon cornstarch
 1/2 cup water in which beets are cooked
 1/4 cup lemon juice
 2 tablespoons salad oil or melted butter

Add:
 2 1/2 cups cooked and seasoned sliced beets
 Let stand over low heat 20 minutes.

Sunkist Spinach
 Put in kettle without water:
 2 pounds washed spinach
 (or other greens)

Add:
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup salad oil
 Cook 8 to 10 minutes. Stir or lift occasionally. Drain and chop. Add:
 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Lemon Buttered Cabbage
 Boil in salted water:
 1 small head cabbage, cut in eighths

Cook for 10 minutes. Blend and pour over cabbage:
 1/4 cup melted butter
 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Serve as luncheon or dinner vegetable. The cabbage may be served with corned beef.

Lemon butter is also good served with asparagus, cauliflower, broccoli, Brussels sprouts and artichokes.

Vary Your Lima Dishes

There isn't an excuse in the world for serving vegetables in one or two forms—time after time. Vegetable dishes should be varied just as we vary our salads and our desserts.

Take cooked, dried Lima beans, for instance. They are no longer seasonable, as they may be procured in cans at any time. These healthful vegetables lend themselves to scores of dishes and should certainly not be served in the same way, meal after meal. Try the following recipes for a change:

Limas Louisiana

(A One-Dish Meal)
 2 cups cooked, dried Limas
 1/2 pound little pork sausages
 2 tablespoons chopped onion
 2 tablespoons shredded green pepper
 1 teaspoon sugar
 1/4 teaspoon mace
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
 2 tablespoons butter
 1 cup milk

Parboil sausages 5 minutes. Combine Limas, sausages and seasonings. Place in an oiled baking dish. Pour milk over the Limas and scatter bits of butter and green pepper over the top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 minutes.

Limas en Casserole

2 cups cooked, dried Limas

Strawberry Desserts For May

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

This month usually sees strawberries beginning to come onto the market in a plentiful supply. Since their season is all too short (at least, that's what strawberry lovers say) enjoy them while you can. Here are some interesting ways of using them.

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of
Good Housekeeping
Institute

All recipes tested by Good Housekeeping Institute. Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

Strawberry Pie

1 baked 9" pie shell
 2 1/2 c. washed, hulled strawberries
 3/4 c. granulated sugar
 1 c. hot water
 1 tsp. granulated sugar

1 pkz. strawberry-flavored gelatin dessert
 2 tsp. lemon juice
 1 c. heavy cream, whipped

Combine the strawberries with the 3/4 c. sugar. To these sweetened berries, add the hot water. Bring to the boiling point, then add the gelatin dessert, and stir until completely dissolved. Add lemon juice and cool until beginning to set. Then stir in 1/2 c. of the cream, whipped, to which 1 tsp. sugar has been added. Pour into the baked pie shell. Chill until set; then top with rest of whipped cream. Makes 1 9" pie.

Strawberry Tapioca Pudding

1 egg yolk
 2 c. milk
 3 tsp. quick-cooking tapioca
 1/2 c. granulated sugar

Combine the beaten egg yolk and milk in top of double boiler. Add tapioca, 6 tsp. of sugar, and salt, and cook 5 min., stirring frequently. Remove from the heat, and chill. Add the vanilla and the crushed strawberries, and stir well. Beat egg white stiff but not dry; gradually beat in remaining 1/2 c. of sugar, then fold into tapioca mixture with whipped cream. Serves 6 to 8.

Spanish Cream and Strawberry Ring

1 envelope plain, unflavored gelatin
 3 c. milk
 1/2 c. granulated sugar

Soak the gelatin in the milk in the top part of a double boiler for 5 min. Then add 1/2 c. of the sugar and the salt, and cook over boiling water, stirring frequently, until the gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat, and gradually pour over well-beaten egg yolks, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler, and cook over low heat until mixture coats spoon (scant consistency). Cool, and add vanilla. When of a thick, syrupy consistency, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites, into which the remaining sugar has been beaten. Turn into a 1 1/2-qt. ring mold, which has been rinsed in cold water, and chill until set. Serve with strawberries heapd in the center. Pass whipped cream. Serves 6. To serve 2, make 1/3 this recipe, using 1 tsp. gelatin and 1 egg.

Strawberry-Cream Roll

1/2 c. sifted all-purpose flour
 1/4 tsp. baking powder
 1/4 tsp. salt
 1 1/4 c. granulated sugar
 3 eggs, beaten until light

Combine the flour, baking powder, and salt, and sift together twice. Gradually add 1/2 c. sugar to the eggs, and beat until thick and light-colored. Add 1 1/4 tsp. vanilla; then fold in dry ingredients. Add the butter; then turn into a well-greased wax-paper-lined shallow pan, 7" x 11" x 1 1/4". Bake in hot oven of 400°F. for 10 min. Then turn out on a damp piece of cheesecloth, which has been sprinkled with powdered sugar. Remove wax paper; then roll the cake up in the cloth, and cool. Meanwhile, whip the cream, and fold in 1/2 c. sugar, 1/2 tsp. vanilla, and the strawberries, which have been combined. When the cake is cool, unroll it, spread with the strawberry filling, and reroll. Cut into 1" crosswise slices, and serve with the remaining strawberry filling on top. Serves 6.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—When we asked Howard Shoup "Why the odd and unusual buttons" on a coat he was doing for Ida Lupino to wear in "The Gentle People," he facetiously retorted that he was "merely in the notion for notions." So we got to thinking that the notion sections of the country's department stores were slowly but surely advancing into the first ranks of fashion.

This brought about our own search for alert touches that are making women's wear only as smart as the smartest detail.

Ever consider what a little piece of braid can do? It's this kind of trim that makes Olivia de Havilland's newest outfit so eye catching. Over a simple print she wears a redingote in brown with flared skirt (the flared skirt is still in despite early predictions to the contrary), and the bodice touched with white braid that rambles in a puzzling design from shoulder to waistline. Then to keep the costume in the correct period Olivia wears a square crowned derby in dull white straw.

We're convinced that buttons speak for themselves this spring, that women are conscious of their newly-acquired accent on the charm of a simple wardrobe. Select them with the same care you give to your choice of accessories because handsome, sometimes gaudy buttons can truly accessorize the smart but plain costume. In this coat mentioned for Miss Lupino, Howard emphasized a curved front closing with small buttons of the self material, which is a heavy dark green linen styled for dress wear. Each button has a small ruffled edge like pee-wee sunflowers.

Consider the slide fastener. Have one fit contrast on a monotone, like enamel blue on rose pink, red on white, green on black or beige. Vera West is designing a smart sweater for Deanna Durbin that uses a slide fastener not only to facilitate the getting into and out of thereof, but also as detail. The sweater is a very long form fitting heavy white knit jerkin, with tight sleeves. Two lengthy purple slides are set in under each arm. Miss West thinks she has a hint to accelerate the present craze for knitting in the matching cap also with purple slide fastener.

Then merely as a beach fad, but something the younger girl will like is the trick of wearing an upper half do secured with red, white and blue hairpins. Linda Darnell wears them with a white cotton romper suit with red, white and blue midsection.

Geraldine Fitzgerald suggests the new sacheted dress shields for the summer wardrobe. It's a dainty, feminine trick, new, in fact the latest, for surrounding yourself with that subtle perfumed aura that every girl tries to achieve.

DIVISION AT FULL STRENGTH

CAMP SHELBY, Miss.—(INS)—One of the last trainloads of selectees, as incoming soldiers are called locally, swelled the 38th Division to full-strength for the first time since 1918. The trainload which filled out the 38th with 18,500 men, boosted the total in camp to 47,000.

The 38th Division is composed of troops from Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia.

WOMAN SCALPED INDIAN

HARRISBURG—(INS)—A faded old manuscript in the state library disclosed a letter written by Mrs. Margery Mitchell, Shippensburg, to the secretary of the Governor's Council in 1757, in which she complained that "although I have made a fatiguing journey to Philadelphia," she had not yet received a bounty for the "Indian Scalp she had delivered." There is no indication whether Mrs. Mitchell ever received her bounty.

Defenders Like These Papers, Army Men Say

Nothing makes a selective service man in camp happier than a letter from home or a home-town newspaper in the daily mail, army officials said recently after an extensive survey.

Next in order, the selective service youth likes sweets such as candy, cookies and chocolates—and chewing gum!

Officers say that on the march the gum helps keep the boys from drinking too much water and from dipping into their lunch ration.

Other offerings which bring a smile of pleasure to the enrollee include a general repertoire of utilities among which are books of stamps, flashlights, a towel now and then, toilet articles, and reading materials.

Officers say that if relatives want to be sure their addressee gets what's mailed to him, they should address the letter or package in this way: Name first, his company or battery second, his regiment third, and, lastly the name of the post office.

The Great Game of Politics

peak, which should not be many months away. It is to say that price fixing, as the Administration appears to be planning it, may be almost as ruinous in one way as inflation would be in another. Though the experience of the past has proven—and nearly every competent economist agrees—that price control by itself is neither practical nor salutary, the present operations seem to be conducted with a complete disregard of that fact. To be effective and healthful, price control must be linked with scientific priorities, a sound fiscal program and wage control. These things are basic.

YET the price-fixing effort of the Administration is not proceeding on that basis. It is true that priorities of a kind are being instituted, but it is not true that there is in the making either a well-thought-out taxation plan or any effort to control wages. On the contrary, the Administration is planning to put a ceiling over prices; but that is all. There will be no ceiling over wages unless there is a very great change of heart upon the part of those in authority. The absurdity of doing the one without doing the other seems too clear to argue.

CERTAINLY it ought to be obvious that if wages tend to go up (which is exactly the idea both of the labor leaders and their New Deal aides) and prices are held rigidly down, in the end industry will be strangled under such a scheme. The point is sure to be reached where private individuals and corporations can no longer do business and the Government will have to take over. There can be no other outcome. As things stand now, apparently there is to be no linking together of prices, goods, services and finances, such as proved successful in the last World War. Instead, it is understood there will be flexible price ceilings, with penalties, fines and commandeering. There will be, it is said, no flat freezing of all prices—and there will be no maximum limit to wages.

OF course, price control along lines such as these alarms every thoughtful man who puts his mind on the matter. But thoughtful men are not in the ascendancy here, and there is no one to check expensive and extreme experimentation. It is stated by usually well-informed persons that the present price-fixing organization will have a $5,000,000 budget and will employ more than 1,600 men. Later, the expectation is 2,500 "spotters" will be added. If anyone thinks that a Government bureau such as that, once entrenched, is easy to abolish after an emergency has passed, he knows little of the history of democratic government. The present price-control plan may be unsound and it may be lopsided. But of two things we can be sure: first, it will be expensive in its operation; second, that it will provide a probably permanent roosting place for a large number of political jobholders.

CHOOSE ACCESSORIES FOR MOTHER'S DAY GIFT PRESENTATION

By Miss Edna Kennedy (Home Economics Representative)
When a new costume is not on the budget for mother, why not dress up the old one with attractive accessories? She will be especially pleased on Mother's day with a new flower, pin, or dainty collar and cuffs for her not so new dress.

Flower accessories are important this season. They come in the larger old-fashioned bouquets, more like the "gay nineties." Violets with a rosebud center are also popular. Yellow flowers are to be found in large bunches as well as in the smaller boutonnières. White and purple lilacs are soft and becoming to most costumes. These bouquets vary in size to suit the fancy of the wearer.

Fruit bouquets such as bunches of bright red cherries, soft yellow pears and peaches, or rosy pink apples will add a perky note to an otherwise dull costume.

Among the pins and lapel ornaments, one has a wide choice. There are jeweled flowers with enameled petals and leaves, pins and necklaces made from vegetable seeds or shells, initialed pins and clips, and jeweled birds and butterflies.

Collar and cuff sets in lacy lingerie or crisp white linen or pique will add a smart touch to last year's dress. These sets are also available in dainty pastel colors.

If mother would like additional accessories, one might consider hostery, handbags, hankies, gloves, belts, or the more elaborate costume jewelry. Most department stores carry these gifts in a wide range of colors and prices so that selection may be easier. Keep in mind the predominant colors of Mother's wardrobe when you shop for accessory gifts.

BENSALEM GIRLS LET LOOSE A BARRAGE OF HOME RUN HITS

Swamp Newtown Girls By The Score Of 29 to 6

KNOCK TEN HOMERS

Rae Crier Crashes Out Two Four-Baggers and Three Singles

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, May 8.—Letting loose with a home run barrage, the Bensalem high school girls swamped the Newtown girls, 29-6, in a Lower Bucks County Softball League tilt played here.

A total of ten homers were made from the bats of the Owlette players. Eleanor Hughes, Doris Ely, Rae Crier, and Vanzant had a pair of four-ply hits each while Lamon and Doyle also hit for the circuit. The homers were the fourth and fifth of the season for Hughes. The circuit blows were also the second for Hazel Lamon and Dot Doyle.

Rae Crier, who was missing from the line-up since the start of the season made her debut and crashed out two four-baggers and three singles in five official trips to the plate. Doyle and Hughes had six for six, Doyle besides her homer had a pair of doubles and three singles.

It was the fourth straight 1941 victory for the Bensalemites and their eleventh consecutive win, counting their unbeaten run of last season. It also marked the first loss of the season for Newtown who previous to yesterday's game had conquered Richboro, 8-7, and New Hope, 21-20.

The tilt only went to six innings because the Blue and White had crossed the plate 17 times in the sixth and only were out because they were tired of running the bases.

The only shining light on the visiting team was the playing of McIntyre who besides having three hits did well in the field.

VanHorn had four strike outs while Bye did not whiff a batter. The walks were 2 for VanHorn and 3 for Bye.

The Bensalem girls will attempt to keep their winning streak intact next Wednesday when they meet Langhorne on the local field.

DOUGHERTY DRIVES IN RUNS TO WIN THE GAME

George Dougherty drove in both runs as the Auto Boys nosed out the Rohm and Haas team, 2-1, last evening on Leedom's field before a large crowd.

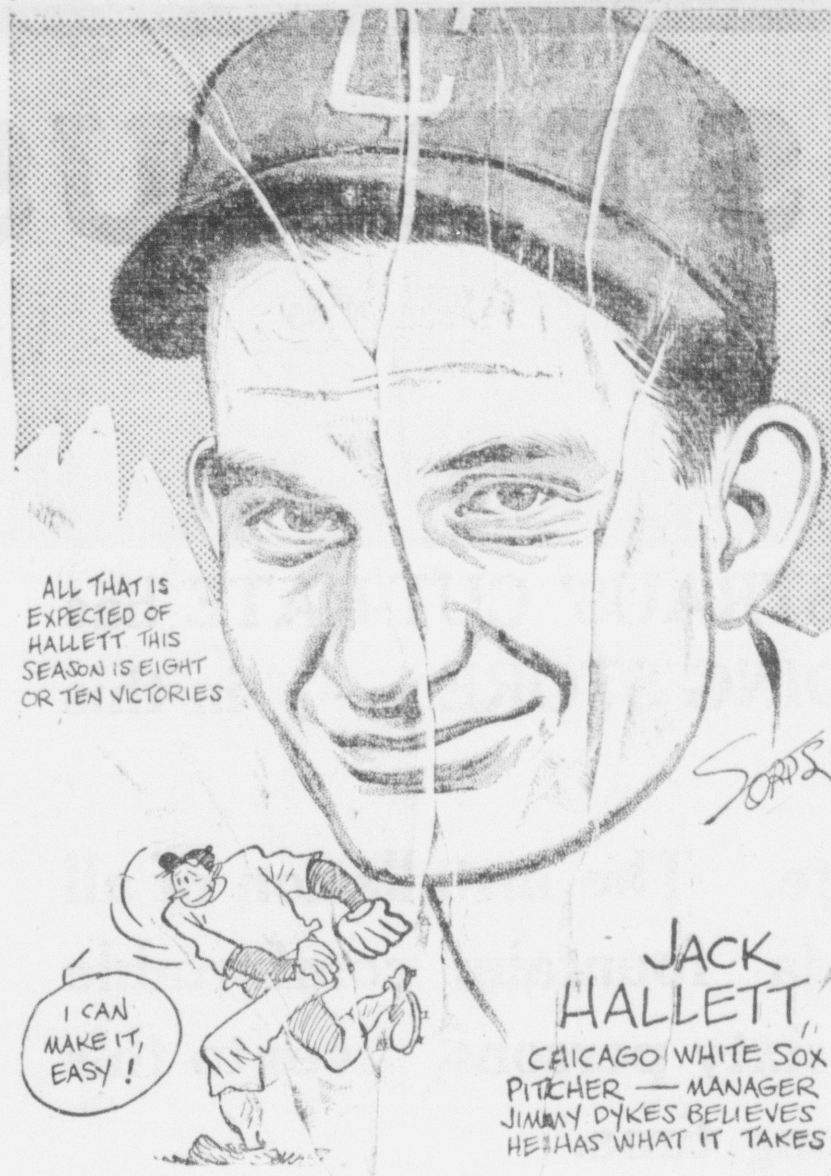

Stepping up to the plate in the fifth inning with Mulhern on base as the result of an error by Massilla, Dougherty walloped a triple to center to score the winning tally. In the first with the saw dust bags loaded with players, Dougherty sent out a long fly to left to score Mulhern.

Dougherty's driving in of the pair of markers gave the colored harrier Elijah Bragg, a well-earned hill triumph over "Herm" Puma. Bragg's outdrop had the chemical workers breaking their necks all evening, he allowing but four hits and whiffing seven batters.

The Maple Beach team's only run came as the result of a single by Massilla, a sacrifice by Gallagher, and a safe blow by Vanzant. Other than that, the Rohm and Haas hitters were helpless, Bragg fanning the last two batters in the fifth with runners on first and second.

Puma, although a bit wild at times, hurled well enough to win an ordinary ball game, that is, a ball game where there isn't a player in the clutch like George Dougherty.

Hubsch Attracts Attention By His Left Hand Catching

Three runs in the sixth gave the Odd Fellows a 6-6 deadlock in their tilt with the Diamond team last evening on Landreth's field.

Errors paved the way for the making of the Oddies' markers and spoiled a good mound performance by the youthful "Bill" Salerno who had as his battery-mate, "Lefty" Hubsch. Hubsch is something rarely seen in baseball, a left-handed catcher.

Joe Stallone put the Diamond team ahead in the second frame by driving out a home run with two on base. His blow was a deep drive into centerfield.

Turner Ashby did the pitching for the Odd Fellows and aside from a bad stretch in the second inning pitched a good brand of ball.
